The aim of the Leeds Beckett Repository is to provide open access to our research, as required by funder policies and permitted by publishers and copyright law.

The Leeds Beckett repository holds a wide range of publications, each of which has been checked for copyright and the relevant embargo period has been applied by the Research Services team.

We operate on a standard take-down policy. If you are the author or publisher of an output and you would like it removed from the repository, please contact us and we will investigate on a case-by-case basis.

Each thesis in the repository has been cleared where necessary by the author for third party copyright. If you would like a thesis to be removed from the repository or believe there is an issue with copyright, please contact us on openaccess@leedsbeckett.ac.uk and we will investigate on a case-by-case basis.

Lewis Paul

Lewis Paul is an artist that works with film, and objects. His work is engaged with masculine identity, queer cultures, and concepts of family. Lewis is interested in the ways we gather, reflect, develop and tell stories, create narrative intersections and illusions and treasure material objects as contributors to social and subjective memory. Recently Lewis has worked in collaboration with the artist Sarah Taylor to explore a relationship between painting and film.

Sarah Taylor

Sarah Taylor is an artist whose research is engaged with gender and working class perspectives in art, painting and cultures of representation. Sarah has shown internationally and written on the broad conflicts of gender in art practice, specifically in relation to underrepresented positions of class-voice, gender-voice and the relation to male dominance in the history of painting.
