The aim of the Leeds Beckett Repository is to provide open access to our research, as required by funder policies and permitted by publishers and copyright law.

The Leeds Beckett repository holds a wide range of publications, each of which has been checked for copyright and the relevant embargo period has been applied by the Research Services team.

We operate on a standard take-down policy. If you are the author or publisher of an output and you would like it removed from the repository, please contact us and we will investigate on a case-by-case basis.

Each thesis in the repository has been cleared where necessary by the author for third party copyright. If you would like a thesis to be removed from the repository or believe there is an issue with copyright, please contact us on openaccess@leedsbeckett.ac.uk and we will investigate on a case-by-case basis.

The History of LALIC

- On 24th May 1994, the inaugural meeting of LALIC was held at the Leeds College of Art and Design and apparently “a large packet of chocolate biscuits was opened to mark the occasion”!
- The original members were Leeds College of Art and Design, Leeds Metropolitan University, University of Leeds (including Bretton Hall College), Henry Moore Study Centre and Leeds Public Art Library.

The following extract is taken from the minutes of the inaugural meeting:

“We decided that the working philosophy of LALIC is that it exists to be useful to us, to provide an oasis of support for each other, to give us joint power and strength and for us to find pleasure in meeting and in visiting each other informally.

We do not wish LALIC to be a source of stress for any of us as professionals. LALIC can provide us with close personal contacts and with a forum for updating. We can discuss management issues such as collection development and promotion as well as exchanging practical information such as opening hours and stock holdings.

We can set up our own guidelines to assist us in referring people to each others' libraries. We can produce joint publications and together we can exercise the power to make discount purchase agreements with suppliers.

We have a working group that our respective institutions will endorse and support... each institution is to have one representative, who can disseminate information to others ... we will meet termly ... the venue will be rotated and the host will chair the meeting ... minutes of the meeting will be rotated so that the workload is shared”.

A welcome event organised in 1996 stated:

“The libraries are very different, and the special nature of LALIC is that it unites librarians from a wide range of institutions, who would not normally meet in the course of their professional practice, but who nevertheless have a great deal in common”.

Art Researchers' Guide to Leeds

“A neat, pocket-sized book, it features contributions from librarians and archivists in ten libraries and repositories in and around Leeds and provides detailed information about the city’s specialised art and design resources. Art researchers... will find it a handy addition to the coat pocket and a useful aid to research.”
